> The American Academy of Dermatology worked with Aura on several projects in 2016. The experience was fantastic and resulted in significant improvements to our site, aad.org. We relied on Andrea Basting's expert UX skills to help transform key sections of aad.org into highly engaging and dynamic templates that gave us a new, robust method of delivering content and media. All work was produced on deadline and was of the highest quality.

> Aura is an oasis in the desert of technology providers. We have an Aptify system and use it with Sitefinity. We are a relatively small organization without the ability to keep qualified staff with the skills necessary to maintain and develop our system. For the last year, AIT has been one of our outside vendors. We are extremely satisfied with their work. They do things right the first time. When a problem arises, they are there immediately to help fix it. They have great insights into both Aptify and Sitefinity and can work magic with them. On top of all of this, their prices are reasonable.

> WVC.org has partnered with several consulting and application development companies and we recently used Aura – Innovative Technology for our Aptify and Melissa Data integration. They definitely delivered on their commitments. They delivered a well-documented solution and project managed the entire implementation from beginning to end. I would highly recommend them to any of my peers or support companies.
